OPEN RECORDS MANUAL

Introduction

The North Dakota Attorney General's office has prepared this manual as a review of existing case law, state statutes, Attorney General opinions, and administrative rules regarding open records and meetings. It includes annotated lists of these authorities, which are intended to be as complete as possible but should not be considered exhaustive. The analysis in this manual summarizes current law and is not an Attorney General opinion.

The issue of how long a public entity should retain particular records is separate from whether a particular record is open, exempt, or confidential under the open records law.

General Open Records Law Requirements

1. What Does the Open Records Law Require?

Open record provisions are found in both the North Dakota Constitution and the North Dakota Century Code:

Unless otherwise provided by law, all records of public or governmental bodies, boards, bureaus, commissions, or agencies of the state or any political subdivision of the state, or organizations or agencies supported in whole or in part by public funds, or expending public funds, shall be public records, open and accessible for inspection during reasonable office hours.

N.D. Const. art. XI, § 6.<sup>1</sup>

1. Except as otherwise specifically provided by law, all records of a public entity are public records, open and accessible for inspection during reasonable office hours. . . .
2. Upon request for a copy of specific public records, any entity subject to subsection 1 shall furnish the requester one copy of the public records requested. An initial request need not be made in person or in writing, and the copy must be mailed upon request. A public entity may require written clarification of the request to determine what records are being requested, but may not ask for the motive or reason for requesting the records or for the identity of the person requesting public records.

The North Dakota Supreme Court summarized the purpose of the open records law shortly after its enactment.

What the Legislature was attempting to accomplish was to provide the public with the right and the means of informing itself of the conduct of the business in which the public has an interest, in order that the citizen and taxpayer might examine public records to determine whether public money is being properly spent, or for the purpose of bringing to the attention of the public irregularities in the handling of public matters.<sup>3</sup>

To serve this important public purpose, these open record provisions should be construed liberally in favor of the public's access to information.<sup>4</sup>

2. Who Is Subject to the Open Records Law?

North Dakota's open records law applies to records of a "public entity," which is defined to include three categories of entities:

- i. Public or governmental bodies, boards, bureaus, commissions or agencies of the state, including any entity created or recognized by the Constitution of North Dakota, state statute, or executive order of the governor or any task force or working group created by the individual in charge of a state agency or institution,<sup>5</sup> to exercise public authority or perform a governmental function;
- ii. Public or governmental bodies, boards, bureaus, commissions or agencies of any political subdivision<sup>6</sup> of the state and any entity created or recognized by the Constitution of North Dakota, state statute, executive order of the governor, resolution, ordinance, rule, bylaw, or executive order of the chief executive authority of a political subdivision of the state to exercise public authority or perform a governmental function; and
- iii. Organizations or agencies supported in whole or in part by public funds, or expending public funds.<sup>7</sup>

<sup>4</sup> See N.D.C.C. § 1-02-01 (statute construed liberally to further its purpose); N.D.A.G. 2000-O-12; Hovet v. Hebron Public School Dist., 419 N.W.2d 189, 191 (N.D. 1988).

<sup>5</sup> "Task force or working group" means a group of individuals who have been formally appointed and delegated to meet as a group to assist, advise, or act on behalf of the individual in charge of a state agency or institution when a majority of the members of the group are not employees of the agency or institution." N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(17).

<sup>6</sup> "Political subdivision" includes any county or city, regardless of the adoption of any home rule charter, and any airport authority, township, school district, park district, rural fire protection district, water resource district, solid waste management authority, rural ambulance service district, irrigation district, hospital district, soil conservation district, recreation service district, railroad authority, or district health unit." N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(11).

<sup>7</sup> "Public funds" means "cash and other assets with more than minimal value received from the state or any political subdivision of the state." N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(14). See also N.D.A.G. 98-O-24; N.D.A.G. 98-O-23.

N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(13). An entity is subject to the open records law if it falls into any one of these three categories.

a. Nongovernmental Organizations

The fact that an organization is a corporation or other business entity rather than a governmental entity does not necessarily mean that the organization is excluded from the definition of "public entity" for purposes of the open records law. Based on the definitions of certain terms used in the open records law, there are three circumstances in which the records of a nongovernmental organization may be open to the public.<sup>8</sup>

First, the organization may be created or recognized by state law or by an action of a political subdivision to exercise public authority or perform a governmental function.<sup>9</sup> As used in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(13)(b), the terms "resolution, ordinance, rule, [or] bylaw" refer to enactments by the official or group responsible for making binding legislative or policy decisions on behalf of the political subdivision.<sup>10</sup>

Second, an organization may be a "public entity" if the organization is supported by public funds or is expending public funds.<sup>11</sup> A nongovernmental organization is expending public funds if it receives and uses a direct appropriation from a governmental entity<sup>12</sup> or if it manages a pool of public funds on behalf of one or more public entities.<sup>13</sup> An organization is "supported in whole or in part by public funds" if the organization receives public funds that exceed the fair market value of any goods or services given in exchange for the funds.<sup>14</sup> The manner of payment is not important and can include grants, membership dues, or fees. However, an organization receiving public funds under a contract with a public entity is not supported by those funds as long as the funds were paid in exchange for goods or services that are reasonably identified in the agreement and have an equivalent fair market value, which may include a commercially reasonable amount of profit for the contractor.<sup>15</sup> A payment under a vague and indistinct contract for unspecified goods or services is considered "support."<sup>16</sup> The key question is whether public funds are being used to support an organization, or <sup>13</sup> N.D.A.G. 99-O-05. Records of a nongovernmental organization that is a "public entity" because it is supported by or expending public funds but is not otherwise performing a governmental function are open only to the extent the records pertain to how public funds are being or have been spent. N.D.A.G. 2006-O-04, N.D.A.G. 2003-O-02.

<sup>15</sup> N.D.A.G. 2015-O-05; N.D.A.G. 2004-O-14; N.D.A.G. 2003-O-01; N.D.A.G. 99-O-03; N.D.A.G. 98-F-19.

merely to purchase goods or services.<sup>17</sup> When public funds are provided to an organization for its general support, rather than for a particular project, all financial records of the organization, including its budget, must be open to the public to determine how the public funds were used.<sup>18</sup>

If an organization receives public funds under an authorized economic development program, the exchange is conclusively presumed to be for fair market value rather than "support" and the organization is therefore not a public entity as a result of receiving the funds.<sup>19</sup> However, this presumption is limited to grants to new employers or businesses for their general operations.<sup>20</sup>

Third, even if an organization is paid fair market value for the services it provides, the organization may be considered an agent or agency of a public entity if the organization performs a governmental function or possesses records regarding public business on behalf of or in place of a public entity.<sup>21</sup> Examples of "agencies of government" include personnel firms, an advertising company hired to perform an educational campaign on behalf of a city,<sup>22</sup> a local economic development corporation,<sup>23</sup> a college bookstore,<sup>24</sup> a local humane society,<sup>25</sup> a taxi company,<sup>26</sup> and foundation and alumni association.<sup>27</sup>

Public entities cannot avoid the requirements of the open records law by forming joint enterprises and transferring funds to that enterprise.<sup>28</sup> Thus, a joint enterprise of several public entities to carry out the public business of those entities is an "agency" of those entities and is therefore a "public entity," even if the enterprise is formed as a separate corporation.<sup>29</sup>

3. Court Records

State courts are not subject to the open records law.<sup>30</sup> However, the Supreme Court has also concluded that "it is the right of the public to inspect the records of judicial proceedings after such proceedings are completed and entered in the docket of the court."<sup>31</sup> This right is not unlimited, but can be subject to reasonable rules and regulations of the court. Management of court records is an inherent power of the court.<sup>32</sup> District court clerks maintain and dispose of court records according to rules, policies and procedures adopted by the Supreme Court.<sup>33</sup> The Disciplinary Board and the Judicial Conduct Commission of the North Dakota Supreme Court are adjuncts of the Supreme Court and are not subject to the open records laws.<sup>34</sup> Their records are instead governed by rules of the Supreme Court.<sup>35</sup>

Some court decisions and statutes indicate whether certain court records are open to the public. For example, the court docket is open to the public.<sup>36</sup> Criminal records are also open once judicial proceedings are completed.<sup>37</sup> The final order determining parentage is open, but other records are open only with the consent of the parties or order of the court.<sup>38</sup> Juvenile court records are also confidential as a general rule, but are open to the public if the records pertain to a petition which has been considered in an open hearing because the petition alleges conduct for which the juvenile may be transferred to district court for criminal prosecution.<sup>39</sup> In addition, "juvenile court" is limited to North Dakota district courts and does not include courts in other jurisdictions.<sup>40</sup> Also, "[f]ollowing an adjudication of delinquency for an offense that would be a felony if committed by an adult, the juvenile's school principal, chief administrative officer, or designated school guidance counselor, if requested, must be allowed access to the disposition order."<sup>41</sup> Other juvenile court records may be shared with the superintendent or principal of the school the child is attending or plans to attend if the child appears to pose a threat to self or to the students or staff of the school.<sup>42</sup>

4. What Material is Covered by the Open Records Law?

As used in the open records law:

"Record" means recorded information of any kind, regardless of the physical form or characteristic by which the information is stored, recorded or reproduced, which is in the possession or custody of a public entity or its agent and which has been received or prepared for use in connection with public business or contains information relating to public business.<sup>43</sup>

"Record" does not include unrecorded thought processes or mental impressions,<sup>44</sup> but does include preliminary drafts and working papers.

"Record" also does not include records in the possession of a court of this state.<sup>45</sup>

N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(16).

The term "record" does not include "every scrap of written material possessed by a public official."<sup>46</sup> To be subject to the open records law, a record must have a link or association with "public business."<sup>47</sup> "Public business" means "all matters that relate or may foreseeably relate in any way to . . . [t]he performance of the public entity's governmental functions, including any matter over which the public entity has supervision, control, jurisdiction, or advisory power; or . . . [t]he public entity's use of public funds."<sup>48</sup>

The open records law is not limited to records possessed by a public entity itself. It also applies when a public entity delegates a public duty to a third party.<sup>49</sup> A request for records in the possession of an "agent" of a public entity may not be denied because the agent does not "own" the records. Rather, records regarding public business that are created or possessed by an agent of a public entity, or created by a third party contractor and possessed by a public entity, should be treated the same as if they were

created and possessed by the public entity itself and are subject to the open records law.<sup>50</sup>

5. Who Has the Right to Inspect Open Records?

Every person has a right to inspect any open public record. Interested persons, news media representatives, governmental agencies, and all others stand on an equal footing under the open records law.<sup>51</sup> Advance notice of a request to inspect open records is not required. Rather, "anyone who walks into city offices without advance notice is entitled to inspect city records."<sup>52</sup> There is no requirement that a requestor must live within the jurisdiction of the public entity, be a North Dakota resident, or a United States citizen.<sup>53</sup> The motive and identity of the person requesting an open record are usually irrelevant; the right to access public records belongs to all persons equally.<sup>54</sup> Generally, a public entity cannot ask a person to put the request in writing or fill out a form before providing public records.<sup>55</sup> However, if, after the initial request, a public entity needs a request to be put in writing for clarification purposes, the public entity may require the request be made in writing, however may still not inquire into the motive or identity of the requestor.<sup>56</sup>

a. Requests from an Adversary to a Pending Action or Proceeding

The general rule that open records are available to anyone upon request does not apply if the person requesting the records is a party to a criminal or civil action, arbitration, or adversarial administrative proceeding in which the public entity is also a party, or if the person is acting as an agent of the party.<sup>57</sup> In those cases, the request must be made to the attorney representing the public entity in the action or proceeding and is governed by applicable discovery rules.<sup>58</sup> Any documents that would normally be open to the

6. When Must Open Records be Available?

North Dakota's open records law requires public records to be "open and accessible for inspection during reasonable office hours." "Reasonable office hours" includes all regular office hours of a public entity.<sup>61</sup> Reasonable is a flexible standard and depends on the facts of each office.<sup>62</sup>

If a public entity does not have regular office hours, the name and telephone number of a contact person authorized to provide access to the public entity's records must be posted on the door of the office of the public entity, if any. Otherwise, the information regarding the contact person must be filed with the secretary of state for state-level entities [and] for public entities defined in subdivision c of subsection 13 of section 44-04-17.1, the city auditor or designee of the city for city-level entities, or the county auditor or designee of the county for other entities.

N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(1).

A public entity is not required to provide access to open records outside its regular office hours.<sup>63</sup> However, public servants can provide access to public records after normal office hours, as long as the public servant does not personally accept compensation for providing that access.<sup>64</sup>

7. How Do I Respond to a Request for Records?

a. Requests for Open Records

All records must be open and accessible for inspection by the public unless otherwise specifically provided by law.<sup>65</sup> In addition to access, a person is entitled to obtain one copy of an open record and to have the copy mailed to the requester.<sup>66</sup> As used in the open records law, "copy" means a duplicate or exact reproduction of the original record.<sup>67</sup> Once a request for records is made to a public entity, the public entity must respond within a reasonable time by providing the requested records or explaining why the request is not being satisfied.<sup>68</sup> A public entity is not required to provide more than one copy of a record to the same requester, but the entity should make sure that the requested copy has previously been provided to the requester, and the public entity must explain that the request for records is being denied because the records have previously been provided to the requester.<sup>69</sup>

A request for records need not be made in person or in writing unless a statute requires otherwise.<sup>70</sup> In addition, the North Dakota Supreme Court has held that a public entity is not required to comply with a continuing request for records and can require separate, periodic requests.<sup>71</sup> Although the open records law does not require officers or employees of a public entity to comment on the substance of an open record, an officer or employee may do so and agreements prohibiting such verbal disclosure are against public policy and are void.<sup>72</sup>

Once a request for records is made, a public entity does not have discretion to decide whether the request is meritorious. A public entity may not circumvent the open records law by suddenly refusing to use previously available means of communication without warning.<sup>73</sup> For example, if a public entity previously allowed open records requests to be made via email, it cannot stop checking the email account suddenly, without notice, to the public. The email account should either be shut down, or an automatic reply be put in place notifying requestors the email account is no longer being checked or utilized.<sup>74</sup>

The public entity may only deny the request if a law specifically provides that the record is either exempt or confidential, the record does not exist, or the entity does not have the record in its, or its agent's, possession.<sup>75</sup> A request for public records may not be denied because it involves a substantial number of copies, the same individual makes multiple requests<sup>76</sup> or that the request would be "cost prohibitive" or a "strain on personnel resources” to fulfill.<sup>77</sup> As long as the request reasonably identifies the records being requested,<sup>78</sup> the number of records being requested affects the time within which a public entity must respond but does not affect the validity of the request.<sup>79</sup> If the public entity does not understand the records request, it has a duty to contact the requestor for clarification in a timely manner.<sup>80</sup> A public entity may require a request be made in writing for clarification purposes.<sup>81</sup>

A request also may not be denied if a document or file contains both open and closed or confidential information.<sup>82</sup> Instead, the public entity must remove the closed or confidential information and disclose the rest of the record.<sup>83</sup> Except for certain computer records,<sup>84</sup> however, nothing requires a public entity to create a new record, disclose records which do not exist, or disclose records it does not have in its, or its agent’s, possession or custody.<sup>85</sup> A public entity also is not required to create a new record by compiling information from other records.<sup>86</sup>

A public entity may require the presence of one of its employees or officials as a security measure when providing access to its records, but that requirement may not be used to deny access merely because it is inconvenient.<sup>87</sup> A public entity may allow a requestor to utilize his or her own personal devices for duplication of records, but may establish reasonable procedures to protect the integrity of the records, so long as such procedures do not prevent access to the records.<sup>88</sup>

<sup>78</sup> A request must reasonably identify a record to be subject to open record laws. A request for information is not considered a request for records. When a person asks questions that generally call for explanations, a legal conclusion, or an answer, it is not considered an open record request because there has been no request for an actual record. The public entity has no duty to provide opinions or explanations under the open records law. See N.D.A.G. 2006-O-09.

<sup>84</sup> Under general open records laws, an entity is not required to create or compile a record that does not exist; however, there is an exception for electronically stored information. If public records are maintained in a database, there must be some meaningful way to access that information and make copies of the information. This may require a public entity to create a document, program, or compilation in order to reveal a copy of the requested records. See N.D.A.G. 2008-O-17; N.D.A.G. 2007-O-01.

The open records law is violated when a person's right to review or receive a copy of an open record is denied or unreasonably delayed, or when an excessive fee is charged for copies of records.<sup>89</sup> A denial of an open records request must indicate the entity's specific authority for denying access to the requested record and be made in writing, if requested.<sup>90</sup> This requirement applies even if the request is denied on the basis that the requested records do not exist.<sup>91</sup> An explanation that a denial is based on the advice of the public entity's attorney is not sufficient.<sup>92</sup> A denial must address all the requested records which are not provided.<sup>93</sup>

b. Disruption of Office Functions

If repeated requests by the same requestor disrupt the essential office functions of a public entity, the public entity may refuse to permit inspection of the records or provide further copies of additional record requests.<sup>94</sup> A public entity refusing to provide records under this section must state, in writing, the reasons supporting its refusal, and provide the reasoning to the requestor. The requestor can ask for an Attorney General's opinion under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-21.1 on whether the public entity's decision was proper.

c. Response within a Reasonable Time

Although state law includes a number of exemptions from the open records law, public officials and employees generally should know what records are under their control must be disclosed.<sup>95</sup> Therefore, access to an open record usually must be granted within a fairly short period of time after a request has been made. Immediate access or copies are not always required, but the amount of time within which the public entity must respond to the request will usually be measured in hours or a few days rather than several days or weeks.<sup>96</sup> When there is a doubt whether a record must be disclosed, a public official or employee may take a reasonable amount of time to determine whether an exemption from the open records law applies to the record in question and may consult with its attorney if needed.<sup>97</sup> However, a delay to seek legal advice is reasonable only if there is a legitimate legal and factual question on what information must be disclosed, and is limited to the length of time which is reasonably necessary to obtain that advice.<sup>98</sup> Further delay in responding to a request until the next regular meeting of the governing body is not reasonable.<sup>99</sup>

Other factors to consider in determining the appropriate length of time within which to respond to a request include the number of documents to be reviewed, excising confidential or closed material, the quantity of records requested, whether the public entity employs staff on a part-time or full-time basis and the availability and workload of such staff who can respond to the request, balancing other responsibilities of the public entity that demand immediate attention, accessibility of the records requested, and sorting out what has previously been provided to a requestor since a requestor is only entitled to one copy.<sup>100</sup> If a public entity cannot reasonably respond to a request immediately, it is not required to identify a specific date when the records will be available,<sup>101</sup> but the burden is on the public entity to let the requester know when the records are available, which must occur within a reasonable time.<sup>102</sup>

d. Electronic Records

In the area of electronic records, it may be more difficult to separate closed or confidential information from information subject to public disclosure. Therefore, a specific provision describes the proper method of providing public access to electronic records.

Access to an electronically stored record under this section, or a copy thereof, must be provided at the requester's option in either a printed document or through any other available medium. A computer file is not an available medium if no means exist to separate or prevent the disclosure of any closed or confidential information contained in that file. Except as reasonably necessary to reveal the organization of data contained in an electronically stored record, a public entity is not required to provide an electronically stored record in a different structure, format, or organization. This section does not require a public entity to provide a requester with access to a computer terminal or mobile device.

Access from a remote location is also authorized for records of state-level entities or political subdivisions if procedures are adopted to maintain the confidentiality of information protected by federal or state law.<sup>104</sup>

If a public entity has copies of records online, it may point a requestor to the website where he or she can access the records, instead of producing a copy of the records.<sup>105</sup> However, if the requestor does not have reasonable access to the internet, the public entity must produce paper copies for the requestor, but may charge the applicable fees under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.

e. Preliminary Drafts and Working Papers

Preliminary drafts and working papers are expressly included in the statutory definition of "record."<sup>106</sup> However, state law authorizes a public entity to temporarily delay public disclosure of these records under certain circumstances.<sup>107</sup> The phrases "working paper" and "preliminary draft" are interchangeable and refer to records which are created and used in the process of creating another record.<sup>108</sup> There are two parts to the delay provision for preliminary drafts and working papers: a "right of first review" provision and a "work in progress" provision.<sup>109</sup> A record prepared at the express direction of, and for presentation to, a governing body may be withheld from the public "until the record is mailed or otherwise provided to a member of the body or until the next meeting of the body, whichever occurs first."<sup>110</sup> Similarly, a working paper or preliminary draft may be withheld "until a final draft is completed, the record is distributed to a member of a governing body or discussed by the body at an open meeting, or work is discontinued on the draft but no final version has been prepared, whichever occurs first."

For public entities headed by a single individual, a working paper or preliminary draft may be withheld from the public "until a final draft is completed, or work is discontinued on the draft but no final version has been prepared, whichever occurs first."<sup>111</sup>

8. What can be Charged for Open Records?

A public entity may only charge those fees provided by law for copies of public records. A public entity may estimate the cost associated in fulfilling a request for records based on the legally allowable charges and can require payment based on the estimate before preparing or providing copies of the requested records.<sup>112</sup> The public entity may also withhold records pursuant to a request until such time as a requester provides payment for any outstanding balance for prior requests.<sup>113</sup> Finally, if the public entity has put in the work and has copies of requested records ready and available, the requestor cannot avoid paying for such records by now modifying the request.<sup>114</sup>

a. Fees for Locating and Providing Access to Records

Until 1999, a public entity could not charge a fee for locating and providing access to public records unless those fees were authorized by statute. As amended in 1999, N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2) currently provides in part: "[a]n entity may impose a fee not exceeding twenty-five dollars per hour per request, excluding the initial hour, for locating records, including electronic records, if locating the records requires more than one hour.... If a public entity receives five or more requests from the same requester within seven days, the public entity may treat the requests as one request in computing the time it takes to locate...the records."<sup>115</sup> This provision authorizes a public entity to charge a fee for locating the records that a person has requested if the search takes longer than one hour,<sup>116</sup> but does not authorize an access fee once the records have been located. A public entity may not charge a fee for the time to prepare a new record that had not been requested and may not charge a fee for organizing, scanning, counting, or printing documents or for the time it takes to forward electronic records.<sup>117</sup> An access fee is authorized when a state-level public entity provides outside access to electronic records, except for access to another state-level public entity.<sup>118</sup>

b. Fees for Reviewing and Excising Closed or Confidential Information

Prior to 2005, a public entity could not charge a fee for the time it took the public entity to review the records and excise closed or confidential material from the records. As amended in 2005, N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2) provides, in part: "[a]n entity may impose a

c. Fees for Copying Records

Public entities may recover the costs incurred in providing copies of public records. Section 44-04-18(2), N.D.C.C. provides:

A public entity may charge up to twenty-five cents per impression of a paper copy. As used in this section, “paper copy” means a one-sided or two-sided duplicated copy of a size not more than eight and one-half by fourteen inches [19.05 by 35.56 centimeters]. For any copy of a record that is not a paper copy as defined in this section, the public entity may charge a reasonable fee for making the copy. As used in this section, “reasonable fee” means the actual cost to the public entity of making the copy, including labor, materials, and equipment. The entity may charge for the actual cost of postage to mail a copy of a record. An entity may require payment before locating, redacting, making, or mailing the copy. . . .This subsection does not apply to copies of public records for which a different fee is specifically provided by law.

N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2).<sup>121</sup> Under this section, a public entity may charge its actual costs for making a copy of a record that cannot be copied on paper of a size not more than eight and one-half by fourteen inches, such as large maps, color photographs or computer discs.<sup>122</sup> As the last sentence in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2) indicates, a public entity may charge a different fee for records if specifically authorized by another statute.<sup>123</sup>

<sup>119</sup> See also N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(3) (if information technology resources are required, the public entity may charge the actual cost incurred by the technology resources, after the first hour).

<sup>121</sup> N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18 does not authorize a public entity to charge for the time it takes to print out records requested; the public entity may only charge the $.25 per page when making a paper copy. The $.25 per page copying cost covers the employee time associated with printing the document. N.D.A.G. 2014-O-18. In addition, even if multiple copies need to be printed for review or excising confidential or exempt information, a public entity may only charge the requester $.25 once for the copy the requestor ultimately receives. See N.D.A.G. 2005-O-05 (The document printed from the computer is the copy for which a person may be charged);

d. Fees Associated With Electronic Records

The locating and reviewing and redacting charges authorized under open record laws when responding to a request for records apply to both paper and electronic copies of records.<sup>124</sup> However, N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18 does not allow a public entity to charge for the time it takes to forward emails or “transfer” emails to a new folder.<sup>125</sup> In addition, section 44-04-18(4), N.D.C.C. provides:

Access to an electronically stored record under this section, or a copy thereof, must be provided at the requester’s option in either a printed document or through any other available medium. A computer file is not an available medium if no means exist to separate or prevent the disclosure of any closed or confidential information contained in that file. Except as reasonably necessary to reveal the organization of data contained in an electronically stored record, a public entity is not required to provide an electronically stored record in a different structure, format, or organization.

A copy of an electronically stored record must be provided at the requester’s option in any available medium, including an electronic format.<sup>126</sup> If a thumb/jump driver is needed to transfer electronic records, such as audio and visual recordings, a requestor is responsible for paying for the thumb/jump drive.<sup>127</sup> Under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(4), if an electronic record exists, and a person makes a request for such a record in its electronic form, the public entity must provide an electronic copy to the requestor, and thereby the public entity may not charge the $.25 per paper copy under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2).<sup>128</sup> However, the law allows a public entity to charge $.25 per page for a printed copy of an electronic record when this is the only method to remove closed or confidential information.<sup>129</sup> When it is necessary to print out the document to excise such information, the document printed from the computer is the copy for which the person may be charged and the person cannot be charged for multiple copies of the same record even if it is necessary to make additional copies during the process of redacting closed or confidential information.<sup>130</sup>

If a person makes a request for an electronic record, but wants to receive such a copy in paper form, the public entity must provide the paper copy but may charge the $.25 per page authorized by N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2).<sup>131</sup>

Finally, the law provides that “if the nature or volume of the public records requested to be accessed or provided requires extensive use of information technology resources, the agency may charge no more than the actual cost incurred for the extensive use of information technology resources incurred by the public entity.”<sup>132</sup> “Extensive use” is defined as taking information technology resources more than one hour to produce.<sup>133</sup>

9. Open Records and Copyright

Federal copyright protection comes into existence immediately upon the creation of an original work, even if the copyright has not been registered.<sup>134</sup> While copyright protection is not available for original works of the United States Government,<sup>135</sup> state and local government entities are not similarly precluded from claiming copyright protection in their original works.<sup>136</sup> Any use of a copyrighted record without the permission of the public entity, except for “fair use” as defined in the Copyright Act, is prohibited.<sup>137</sup> “A disclosure of a requested record under [the open records law] is not a waiver of any copyright held by the public entity in the requested record . . . .”<sup>138</sup>

10. How Is the Open Records Law Enforced?

a. Administrative Review

Any interested person may request an Attorney General’s opinion to review an alleged violation of the open records law by any public entity other than the Legislative Assembly or any committee thereof.<sup>139</sup>

A request made under this section must be made within thirty days of the alleged violation, except that a request based on allegations that a meeting occurred without the notice required by section 44-04-20, must be made within ninety dates of the alleged violation. In preparing an opinion under this section, the attorney general has discretion to obtain and review a recording made under section 44-04-19.2. The attorney general may request and obtain information claimed to be exempt or confidential for the purpose of determining whether the information is exempt or confidential. Any such information may not be released by the attorney general and may be returned to the provider of the information. The attorney general shall issue to the public entity involved an opinion on the alleged violation, which may be a summary opinion, unless the request is withdrawn by the person requesting the opinion or a civil action has been filed involving the possible violation. If the request pertains to a [nongovernmental organization supported by or expending public funds], the opinion must be issued to the public entity providing the public funds. In any opinion issued under this section, the attorney general shall base the opinion on the facts given by the public entity.

N.D.C.C. § 44-04-21.1(1).

If the Attorney General's opinion concludes that a violation occurred, the public entity has seven days to comply with the opinion and take corrective action, regardless of whether a civil action is filed under section 44-04-21.2. If the public entity fails to do so, and the person requesting the opinion prevails in a civil action brought under section 44-04-21.2, the person must be awarded attorneys' fees and costs for the trial and any appeal. "The consequences for failing to comply with an attorney general's opinion issued under this section will be the same as for other attorney general's opinions, including potential personal liability for the person or persons responsible for the noncompliance."<sup>140</sup> A state-level public entity that does not comply in full with the Attorney General's opinion is responsible for obtaining separate legal counsel, at its own expense, and the attorney must obtain an appointment as a special assistant attorney general under N.D.C.C. § 54-12-08.<sup>141</sup>

b. Civil Action

In 1997, the Legislative Assembly authorized a civil action by any interested person against a public entity for violations of the open records law.<sup>142</sup> A complaint alleging a violation of the open records law must be accompanied by a dated, written request for the requested record. The action must be commenced within 60 days of the date the person knew or should have known of the violation or within 30 days of issuance of an Attorney General's opinion on the alleged violation, whichever is later. The action must be commenced in the county where the entity has its principal office or in Burleigh County for entities that do not have a principal office within the state.

"If a court finds that any of these sections have been violated by a public entity, the court may award declaratory relief, an injunction, a writ of prohibition or mandamus, costs, disbursements, and reasonable attorney's fees against the entity."<sup>143</sup> Damages may be assessed in the amount of $1,000 or actual damages, whichever is greater, for an intentional or knowing violation of these laws. The court can also void any action that is a product of an illegal meeting.<sup>144</sup>

This section does not authorize a civil action if the violation has been cured before the action is filed and no person has been harmed by the delay.<sup>145</sup> Furthermore, a public entity may not be sued for attorneys' fees or damages, or both, until at least three working days after the chief administrative officer for the public entity receives notice and opportunity to cure the alleged violation.<sup>146</sup> This opportunity to cure a violation does not apply if the public entity has previously been found by the Attorney General to have violated the open records or meetings laws.<sup>147</sup>

c. Criminal Violations

Under legislation enacted in 2001, a public servant who knowingly violates the open records and meetings laws is guilty of a class A misdemeanor.<sup>148</sup>

11. Examples of Records Generally Open to the Public

a. Minutes of Open Meetings

Public entities must take minutes of all meetings. Minutes are public records and are open to the public, even if not yet formally approved.<sup>149</sup> Minutes of the confidential or closed portion of a meeting are not required to be open.<sup>150</sup>

b. Personnel Records

Personnel records, including information regarding the salary and job performance of a public employee, are generally open to the public.<sup>151</sup> However, there is an exception to this general rule for "personal information" regarding a current or past public employee, or applicant for employment with a public entity.

"[P]ersonal information" means a person's month and day of birth; home address; home telephone number or personal cell phone number; photograph; medical information; motor vehicle operator's identification number; public employee identification number; payroll deduction information; the name, address, phone number, and date of birth, of any dependent or emergency contact; any credit, debit, or electronic fund transfer card number; and any account number at a bank or other financial institution. Information regarding the type of leave taken by an employee is exempt, although the amount of leave taken or accrued, and the dates of the leave taken, is public record. Information regarding leave applied for but not yet taken is exempt until the leave is taken.

Information other than that listed above, including information contained in a job application or resume submitted by an applicant for employment with a public entity, is open to the public, unless otherwise made exempt or confidential by law.<sup>153</sup>

c. Financial Records and Contracts of a Public Entity

Financial records of a public entity, including its checkbook, are generally open to the public.<sup>154</sup> However, financial account numbers, including any credit, debit, or electronic fund transfer card or account number, are not open records.<sup>155</sup> Contracts and settlements of lawsuits or claims against the entity are open also.<sup>156</sup>

d. Corporate Information

Nonfinancial corporate information contained in the annual reports filed with the Secretary of State is not confidential and is open to the public.<sup>157</sup> This information includes the name and address of a corporation, its registered agent, officers and board of directors, and a brief statement of the corporation's business.

e. Emails and Other Electronic Records

The definition of “record” in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(16) includes emails in the possession of employees of a public entity related to public business, regardless of whether the emails are stored at home, on a private computer, or sent/received from a personal email address.<sup>158</sup> The definition also includes text messages in the possession of employees of a public entity that relate to public business, regardless of whether the text messaging was sent or received by using a personal or private cell phone.<sup>159</sup>

Exemptions from the Open Records Law

Records possessed by an entity subject to the open records law are presumptively open to the public during normal business hours. However, because the open records law does not apply if "otherwise specifically provided by law," public records need not be disclosed if they fall within a specific exemption from the open records law.<sup>160</sup>

[B]ecause the open-records law provides that governmental records are to be open to the public "Except as otherwise specifically provided by law," an exception to the open-records law may not be implied. In order that a record may be excepted from the open-records law the Legislature must specifically address the status of that type of record -- e.g., statements that a certain type of record is confidential or that it is not open to the public.<sup>161</sup>

As a result, in contrast to the broad interpretation of the open records law, an exemption from the open records law must be firmly grounded in law rather than an implied, vague, or arguable exemption.<sup>162</sup>

1. Sources of Exemptions

Exemptions from the open records law must be "specifically provided by law." "Law" includes "federal statutes, applicable federal regulations, and state statutes."<sup>163</sup> The term "law" does not include contracts entered into by public entities; rather, it is the exclusive province of the Legislature to enact exceptions to the open records law.<sup>164</sup> Therefore, open records law cannot be limited by policy or contract.<sup>165</sup> A public entity may not close or make confidential a record through administrative rules. State law, however, delegates to some administrative agencies the authority to, by administrative rule, make certain confidential records available to the public.<sup>166</sup> Upon becoming effective, administrative rules adopted pursuant to N.D.C.C. ch. 28-32 "have the force and effect of law."<sup>167</sup>

As a general rule, when two public entities possess the same record, each entity possesses the record in its own capacity and must make its own decision on whether to disclose the record.<sup>168</sup> Most exceptions to the open records law are specific to the entity possessing the records, and do not apply to records which are also possessed by another public entity.<sup>169</sup> In 2005, however, an exception to the general rule was created to provide protection for secondary disclosure of confidential records. N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.10 provides that “[c]onfidential records that are authorized by law to be disclosed to another entity continue to be confidential in the possession of the receiving entity, except as otherwise provided by law.”<sup>170</sup>

<sup>160</sup> Records not subject to the open records law are still public records. N.D.A.G. 94-L-52; N.D.A.G. 65-75.

<sup>162</sup> Marking something as "confidential" is of no legal significance absent a federal or state law expressly declaring the record to be confidential. N.D.A.G. 2005-O-16.

The application of a statute making certain records confidential or exempt may be waived by the party or parties for whose benefit the statute was passed.<sup>171</sup>

a. Effective Date of New Exemptions

A public entity’s response to an open records request is not governed by the law in effect when the requested records were created, but rather by the law in effect on the date the entity is required to respond to the request.<sup>172</sup>

2. Types of Exemptions

There are three classes of public records under North Dakota law.<sup>173</sup> The first class consists of documents that are confidential. Disclosure of these documents is generally prohibited. The second class consists of documents that are subject to the open records law. Disclosure of these documents is generally required. A public entity generally has no discretion regarding disclosing records in either of these two classes. There is a third class of documents consisting of documents that are not confidential, but are also not subject to the open records law and considered exempt or closed. Because disclosure of this class of documents is neither prohibited as confidential, nor required to be open, disclosure of these exempt documents by a public entity is discretionary. Whether disclosure is prohibited or merely not required will depend on the specific wording of the law excluding those records from the application of the open records law.

a. Confidential Records

The phrase "confidential records" means "all or part of a record . . . that is either expressly declared confidential or is prohibited from being open to the public."<sup>174</sup> Confidential records are characterized by a lack of discretion to disclose documents to the public, and the release of confidential records generally can be punished. The disclosure of confidential information is prohibited by N.D.C.C. § 12.1-13-01, which provides in part:

A person is guilty of a class C felony if, in knowing violation of a statutory duty imposed on him as a public servant, he discloses any confidential information which he has acquired as a public servant.

Statutes declaring records to be confidential will often indicate that any release of the records is subject to the penalty in this section. However, this penalty would apply without such a reference unless otherwise provided by another statute.

Records need not be expressly declared confidential for their disclosure to be prohibited by N.D.C.C. § 12.1-13-01, which also provides:

"Confidential information" means information made available to the government under a governmental assurance of confidence as provided by statute.

This definition "includes not only those documents which a statute specifically states are confidential, but also those which a statute provides cannot be disclosed or for which the Legislature has provided a penalty for disclosure."<sup>175</sup>

b. Exempt Records

Questions regarding the open records law are generally discussed in terms of the public's right of access to information. Rarely discussed is an agency's discretion to voluntarily disclose to the public records that are not confidential but are exempt from the open records law. In this context, the phrase "exempt record" means "all or part of a record . . . that is neither required by law to be open to the public, nor is confidential, but may be open in the discretion of the public entity."<sup>176</sup> There are few opinions of this office describing this discretion, but it should be "based upon the particular situation, the type of record, the interests served by release or nondisclosure of the document and any other relevant factors."<sup>177</sup>

Disclosure of a document or information to one individual or one category of persons does not necessarily mean . . . that the document has become an open record which must be disclosed to all persons. For example, a determination could be made to disclose records only to those persons who were directly affected by them, or those individuals who were named within the records without opening the records to the general public. The administrator's best discretion should be used in each instance to determine whether a request for a record will be granted.<sup>178</sup>

If the public entity has not exercised its discretion to disclose all or part of an exempt record, the record is a "closed record."<sup>179</sup>

3. Limits on Exemptions

In addition to the requirement that exemptions be specifically provided by law, there may be several other limits on exemptions from the open records law.

a. Temporary Exemptions

Some public records are exempt from the open records law for only a limited time. For example, criminal intelligence and investigative information is exempt only so long as the information is related to "active" intelligence gathering or investigations.<sup>180</sup> Similarly, the investigative records of fire departments and fire protection districts are confidential until the investigation is closed or no longer active.<sup>181</sup>

There are public entities that, by law, must monitor and enforce compliance with the law or an order. The investigatory work product obtained, compiled, or prepared by a public entity gathered while doing so is exempt as long as the records are related to monitoring and enforcement activity conducted with a reasonable good-faith belief that it will lead to enforcement of the law or an order.<sup>182</sup>

Attorney work product is open to the public once litigation or adversarial administrative proceedings are completed, including the exhaustion of all appellate remedies, as long as no other exception applies; disclosure would not have an adverse fiscal effect on other pending or reasonably predictable civil or criminal litigation or adversarial administrative proceedings; or the attorney work product reflects mental impressions, opinions, conclusions, or legal theories regarding potential liability of a public entity.<sup>183</sup> Finally, bids or proposals received by a public entity in response to a request for proposals by the public entity are exempt until such time as all the proposals have been received and opened by the public entity or all oral presentations regarding the proposals, if any, have been heard by the public entity.<sup>184</sup>

b. Open to Certain People or Entities

The open records law and its exemptions are not meant to interfere with government operations. Thus, even where records are declared confidential, they may be open to certain entities or people as provided by law. For example, confidential law enforcement records "of a child alleged or found to be delinquent, unruly, or deprived" may nevertheless be open to a juvenile court having the child before it in any proceeding and to the attorney for a party to that proceeding.<sup>185</sup> Likewise, confidential child abuse and neglect reports are available to law enforcement officials or other public officials who require such information to discharge their official duties.<sup>186</sup> Also, criminal justice agencies may disclose criminal history information to other criminal justice agencies, but only the Bureau of Criminal Investigation may disclose that information to a person or entity that is not a criminal justice agency.<sup>187</sup> Finally, a request from a party (or agent of a party) to litigation involving a public entity is subject to the rules of discovery.<sup>188</sup>

c. Open for Limited Purpose

In addition to restricting the entities or persons who may have access to public records, specific exemptions may allow access to public records only for certain purposes. A nontreating mental health professional would have access to confidential treatment records only if necessary to conduct an investigation and report as directed by a state's attorney regarding a petition for involuntary treatment or commitment for mental illness.<sup>189</sup> Confidential records relating to government operations are nevertheless available to the state auditor when necessary in conducting an audit.<sup>190</sup> Disclosure of confidential or exempt records may also be authorized or required for statistical purposes or research projects, although any identifying information contained in the records will generally be required to be kept confidential.<sup>191</sup> Finally, while the general public may have access to records of a public entity that is a party in a pending court action or adversarial administrative proceeding, the public entity's adversary in the action or proceeding would not have such access.<sup>192</sup>

d. Compilations and Source Documents

Some open records exemptions apply to records which are compilations of information from other records.<sup>193</sup> The Supreme Court has held that a law authorizing a specific fee for copies of a compilation which exceeds the entity's actual cost of making the copy does not apply to copies of the source documents used to prepare that compilation. The source documents are instead subject to the copy fee allowed in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18(2).<sup>194</sup> Similarly, the fact a compilation is a closed record does not authorize a public entity to deny a request for source documents which were used to prepare the compilation.<sup>195</sup>

4. Disclosure of Closed or Confidential Information

As discussed above, unauthorized, knowing disclosure of confidential records is generally a class C felony.<sup>196</sup> Whether to disclose exempt records is generally left to the discretion of the public entity. However, there may be circumstances under which a public entity is required or authorized to disclose confidential or closed records.

If not prohibited by federal law, a public entity may share confidential or closed records with any other public entity for the purpose of law enforcement or collection of debts owed to a public entity.<sup>197</sup> The recipient public entity may not use the records for other purposes and must otherwise maintain the closed or confidential nature of the records. This authority applies to governmental entities only, and does not apply to nongovernmental organizations that are expending or supported by public funds. In addition, this authority does not apply if the statute making the records confidential or closed also explains the specific circumstances under which the records may be shared with other public entities, as long as those circumstances are unique and not common to all confidential or closed records.<sup>198</sup>

Disclosure of confidential or closed information also may be required by a court. If a public entity receives a valid subpoena or other court order to produce closed records, the entity must comply with the subpoena or order unless disclosure under a court order is otherwise prohibited or limited by law.<sup>199</sup> A court order is required to compel disclosure of confidential information that is not privileged or otherwise protected by law from court-ordered disclosure. Upon request of the public entity, the court ordering disclosure shall also issue a protective order to preserve the confidentiality of the records. Any person who discloses confidential information under this section is immune from prosecution for breaching the confidentiality of the record.

A member of a governing body of a public entity has an inherent right to have access to all closed or confidential records of the public entity, unless the records involve litigation between the member and the governing body.<sup>200</sup>

5. Secondary Disclosures

If confidential records are authorized by law to be disclosed to another entity, the records continue to be confidential in the possession of the receiving entity, except as otherwise provided by law.<sup>201</sup> Sometimes, a law authorizing disclosure of closed<sup>202</sup> information to certain individuals or entities will restrict further disclosure of that information by the individuals or entities which receive the records.<sup>203</sup> However, because most exceptions to the open records law are specific to the entity possessing the records, secondary disclosure of closed records by a public entity which has received the records will not be prohibited, and may be required upon request under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18, unless a specific exception to the open records law applies to the records in the possession of the public entity.<sup>204</sup>

6. Examples of Records Generally Not Open to the Public

a. Law Enforcement Records

This significant area of open records exemptions is discussed later in this manual in greater detail.

b. Attorney Work Product

The 1989 Legislature enacted a law declaring attorney work product exempt from the open records law. The purpose of the exemption is to conceal a public entity's attorney work product from its adversary, rather than to prevent public access to the work product.<sup>205</sup> To be exempt under this statute, attorney work product must (1) be prepared by the attorney or at the attorney's express direction; (2) reflect a mental impression, conclusion, litigation strategy, or legal theory of the attorney or the agency; and (3) be prepared exclusively for litigation or adversarial administrative proceedings, or in anticipation of reasonably predictable litigation or adversarial administrative proceedings, or for guidance on the legal risks, strengths, and weaknesses of an action of a public entity.<sup>206</sup> All three of these requirements must be met for attorney work product to be exempt under this statute.<sup>207</sup> Adversarial administrative proceedings include administrative proceedings where the administrative agency acts as a complainant, respondent, or decision maker in an adverse administrative proceeding.<sup>208</sup>

<sup>202</sup> N.D.C.C. § 44-04-17.1(2) ("closed records" means all or part of an exempt records that a public entity in its discretion has not opened to the public).

<sup>203</sup> See, e.g., N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.10(4), N.D.C.C. ch. 23-01.3.

<sup>208</sup> N.D.C.C. § 44-04-19.1(4). The Attorney General's review of alleged violations of open record and meeting laws pursuant to N.D.C.C. § 44-04-21.1 is not considered an "adversarial administrative proceeding." N.D.A.G. 2015-O-01.

An administrative agency is not limited to agencies of the state, but includes local governing bodies as well.<sup>209</sup>

The exemption for attorney work product protects the products of an attorney's thought process on legal issues posed by a pending or reasonably predictable court action or adversarial administrative proceeding. The types of records eligible for protection under the exemption are similar to those that may be protected as opinion work product under North Dakota Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(3).<sup>210</sup>

Attorney work product is not exempt under this section once litigation or adversarial administrative proceedings are completed, including the exhaustion of all appellate remedies, unless another exception applies.<sup>211</sup> Attorney work product continues to be exempt if disclosure "would have an adverse fiscal effect on the conduct or settlement of other pending or reasonably predictable civil or criminal litigation or adversarial administrative proceedings;" or the attorney work product "reflects mental impressions, opinions, conclusions, or legal theories regarding potential liability of a public entity."<sup>212</sup> Attorney work product is not exempt if "specifically made public by the public entity receiving the work product"<sup>213</sup> or if the public entity waives the exemption by allowing its adversary in the litigation or proceeding to review the attorney work product.<sup>214</sup>

c. Trade Secrets, Proprietary, Commercial, and Financial Information

Like any other public record, records containing trade secrets, proprietary, commercial, or financial information are open to the public unless otherwise specifically provided by law. Thus, before the exemptions discussed below were adopted, public records containing trade secrets, proprietary, commercial, or financial information were open to the public.<sup>215</sup> The 1989 Legislature enacted a statute declaring certain information confidential.<sup>216</sup> This statute was substantially amended in 1993, and currently provides in part:

Trade secret, proprietary, commercial, and financial information is confidential if it is of a privileged nature and it has not been previously publicly disclosed.

The terms “trade secret,” “proprietary,” “commercial information” and “financial information” are defined by statute.<sup>217</sup> In addition to falling into a statutory definition, the record must also be “privileged” and not previously publicly disclosed in order to be considered confidential.<sup>218</sup> Records are “of a privileged nature” only if disclosure of the records is likely to 1) impair the [public entity’s] ability to obtain necessary information in the future or 2) cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the [person or entity which provided or prepared the information].<sup>219</sup>

Information prepared by a public entity is not “of a privileged nature,” and therefore is not confidential under this section, unless the public entity is in competition with another entity which offers similar goods or services.<sup>220</sup> Also, there can be no “competitive disadvantage” from disclosure if all competitors are required to provide the same information.<sup>221</sup>

Judicial interpretations of similar language in the federal Freedom of Information Act are helpful when determining whether records are “of a privileged nature” under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.4.<sup>222</sup> Applying these interpretations, the Attorney General has concluded that disclosure of contract prices is part of doing business with the government and, as a matter of law, it does not cause a competitive injury to the contractor to disclose the contract prices.<sup>223</sup>

The plain language of the exemption in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.4(1) for financial information of a privileged nature applies not only to financial information of a business, but also to personal financial information such as a detailed breakdown of a person’s income and medical expenses.<sup>224</sup> Disclosure of financial information of a person who is not in competition with another person or with a business cannot cause a competitive injury to that person. Thus, whether the information is “of a privileged nature” in such a situation and therefore confidential, depends on whether disclosure would impair the public entity’s future ability to obtain such information.

d. Economic Development Records

Unless economic development records are confidential under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.4(1) or another statute, N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.4(5) exempts from the open records law "[r]ecords and information pertaining to a prospective location of a business or industry, including the identity, nature, and location of the business or industry, when no previous public disclosure has been made by the business or industry of the interest or intent of the business or industry to locate in, relocate within, or expand within this state or partner with a public entity to conduct research or to license a discovery or innovation." This exemption applies only until the business or industry discloses to the public whether it will locate, relocate, or expand within the state.<sup>225</sup>

This statute also exempts "[t]rade secrets and proprietary, commercial, or financial information received from a person that is interested in applying for or receiving financing, technical assistance, or other forms of business assistance."<sup>226</sup> This provision does not apply to the identity of the business or to records generated by the public entity itself, unless the record generated by the public entity contains protected information provided by the business.<sup>227</sup> There is also a specific statutory exemption from the open records law for records of the North Dakota Development Fund, Incorporated.<sup>228</sup>

Marketing strategies and other marketing information of a public entity engaged in economic development may be confidential as trade secrets under N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.4.<sup>229</sup>

e. Minutes and Recordings of Executive Sessions

The recording of an executive session is not an open record,<sup>230</sup> and continues to be closed to the public even if the underlying statutory basis for the executive session no longer applies.<sup>231</sup> In addition, to the extent that a public entity keeps minutes of an executive session, those minutes are treated the same as the recordings and are not open to the public. Nevertheless, a member of a governing body has a right to listen to the recording, and allowing a member access does not make the recording an open record.<sup>232</sup>

f. Personal Medical Health Records

There are several exemptions to the open records law for personal medical and health records possessed by public entities. Medical records obtained as a result of enrollment in the uniform group insurance plan are confidential.<sup>233</sup> Any record of a public employee's medical treatment or use of an employee assistance program is confidential.<sup>234</sup> Other medical information of public employees which has been provided in the course of employment with the state or a political subdivision is exempt.<sup>235</sup> Records of patients at a state college or university student health service or other university system medical center or clinic are confidential.<sup>236</sup> Individually identifiable health information obtained by a fire department or rural fire protection district is also confidential.<sup>237</sup>

The broadest exemption for personal health information is located in N.D.C.C. ch. 23-01.3. Under this chapter, disclosure of "protected health information" in the possession of a "public health authority" is generally prohibited.<sup>238</sup> "Protected health information" is defined generally as any information which either identifies an individual or could be used to identify an individual, and which relates to the individual's physical or mental condition, health care, or payment for the provision of health care.<sup>239</sup> The definition of "public health authority" includes the State Department of Health, the local public health units, and any other governmental agency which is primarily responsible for public health matters and is primarily engaged in public health activities.<sup>240</sup>

g. Student Records

Student records at state higher education institutions are confidential under state law,<sup>241</sup> but the application of state law to records of elementary and secondary school students is limited. Federal law, however, imposes extensive restrictions on the disclosure of student records. As stated earlier in this manual, exemptions from the open records law can be found in federal law as well as state law. The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), 20 U.S.C. § 1232g, "is a specific exception to the open records law."<sup>242</sup> This law provides that "education records" which contain "personally identifiable information" of a student must be confidential and may not be disclosed without prior written consent.<sup>243</sup> Before denying a request for records, educational institutions must

<sup>243</sup> 20 U.S.C. § 1232g(b). "Personally identifiable information" is defined by 20 U.S.C. § 1232g. N.D.A.G. 94-F-28. "For purposes of reviewing records under [FERPA], or any other federal privacy law, the assistant or special assistant attorney general is considered a state educational official authorized to perform a proper analysis to determine if the requested records can be redacted to such an extent that release would not violate FERPA; that is, that the student's "personally identifiable information" can be adequately redacted from the record.<sup>244</sup> An educational institute may also disclose "directory information," which is information that would generally not be considered harmful or an invasion of privacy if disclosed, and may be disclosed only after the public is given notice of the material designated by the school as directory information.<sup>245</sup>

The phrase "education records" under FERPA includes a non-academic record of a student which is included in the student's permanent file.<sup>246</sup> However, the phrase "education records" under FERPA does not include a letter to a school district from a parent of a child based on the parent's personal observations, even if the parent is also a school district employee.<sup>247</sup> Additionally, a student's disciplinary records may be released if "personally identifiable information" is adequately removed.<sup>248</sup> This exemption from the open records law for "education records" is also an exemption from the open meetings law.<sup>249</sup>

FERPA and a state law, N.D.C.C. § 15.1-19-14, authorize a school district to form a "law enforcement unit." Records of the unit are confidential, but may be released to the juvenile courts and law enforcement agencies, as well as to the student's parents or guardian.

h. Reports of Child Abuse or Neglect

Reports of child abuse or neglect made under N.D.C.C. ch. 50-25.1 generally are confidential.<sup>250</sup> Any person who permits or encourages the unauthorized disclosure of these reports is guilty of a class B misdemeanor.<sup>251</sup> However, disclosure of these reports may be made to public officials who require the information in connection with their official duties, including federal officials.<sup>252</sup> In addition, "information reflecting the

i. Disease Control Records

N.D.C.C. § 23-07-20.1 provides:

To protect the integrity of disease control records, to ensure their proper use, and to ensure efficient and proper administration of the department's disease control function, it is unlawful for any person to permit inspection of or to disclose information contained in disease control records, including results of laboratory tests, or to copy or issue a copy of all or part of any such record except as authorized by rules.<sup>254</sup>

A person who violates this section is guilty of an infraction.<sup>255</sup>

j. Motor Vehicle Records

Until August 1, 1997, most driver license and motor vehicle information was open to the public, although photographs were not.<sup>256</sup> The 2001 Legislative Assembly enacted legislation prohibiting release of "personal information" in a motor vehicle record to the general public unless expressly authorized by the person to whom the information pertains.<sup>257</sup> "'Personal information' means information that identifies a person, including an individual's photograph or computerized image, social security number, driver identification number, name, address, telephone number, and medical or disability information."<sup>258</sup> A driver's license number may not be based on the driver's social security number.<sup>259</sup>

I. Multistate Investigations and Litigation

Records acquired by the attorney general's office from a governmental agency or a nonpublic entity are exempt if the records are necessary to monitor or enforce compliance with a law or order or to further a civil investigation or litigation by the state, considered confidential or privileged by the provider of the records, and the privilege or confidentiality has not been waived.<sup>265</sup>

m. Lists of Minors

Any record that is a compilation of minor's names, addresses, phone numbers, or any combination of that information is exempt.<sup>266</sup>

n. Computer Programs and Computer Passwords

Computer programs contracted for, developed by, or acquired by a public entity and for which the public entity has acquired a license, copyright or patent are exempt.<sup>267</sup> A public entity may enter into agreements for the sale, licensing and distribution of its licensed, patented, or copyrighted computer programs.<sup>268</sup> A state agency, institution, department, or board needs approval from the governor to enter into such agreements. The state's interest in the computer software may be protected against improper or unlawful use or infringement, including by taking legal action and collecting sums due for the licensing or sale of the computer program.<sup>269</sup>

o. Financial Account Numbers

Any bank account or credit card number used by a public entity or official for making deposits, transfers, or payments is exempt.<sup>271</sup>

p. Personal Information of Licensed Professionals

The exemption for "personal information" of public employees includes personal information maintained by an occupational or professional licensing board of any "individual who has applied for, holds, or has held in the past an occupational or professional license, certificate, credential, permit, or registration issued by a state occupational or professional board, association, agency, or commission."<sup>272</sup>

q. Consumer Complaint Information

Personal and financial information of a person who submits a consumer complaint to a state agency, or a person on whose behalf a complaint is submitted, is exempt.<sup>273</sup>

For purposes of this section, "personal and financial information" means the home address, home telephone number, social security number, consumer report, and credit, debit, or electronic fund transfer card number of the complainant and any person on whose behalf the complaint is made, and any account number of a business or individual at a bank, brokerage, or other financial institution.<sup>274</sup>

This exception does not apply to records regarding the nature of a consumer complaint, the name of the complainant or person on whose behalf a complaint is made, and the address and telephone number of the business that is the subject of the complaint.<sup>275</sup>

s. Legislative Records and Information

The 1989 Legislature declared certain legislative records and information exempt from the open records law. These are records of a purely personal and private nature, a record that is legislative council work product or is legislative council-client communication, and records that reveal the content of private communications between a legislator and any person and a record of telephone usage.<sup>282</sup> This exemption only applies to records of the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly or its members.<sup>283</sup>

If Legislative Council makes a public records request on behalf of a member of the Legislative Assembly, the written or digital record of such a request, including information on the identity of the requester, is considered a public record and must be maintained by Legislative Council.<sup>284</sup>

t. Bank of North Dakota Customer Records

Most information of customers at the Bank of North Dakota is confidential.<sup>285</sup> However, the name of an agricultural or commercial borrower of the Bank of North Dakota and the amount of financing provided to the borrower are open to the public upon request to the Industrial Commission after the loan has closed.<sup>286</sup>

u. Social Security Numbers

Social security numbers in the possession of a public entity are confidential.<sup>287</sup> They can be released as authorized by state or federal law, for purposes of participating in retirement or other employment benefits programs, or if authorized by the individual to whom the social security number is assigned.<sup>288</sup> Public entities may release social security numbers to its agents, employees, or contractors if such disclosure is necessary to perform its duties.<sup>289</sup> The numbers must remain confidential in the hands of the agents, employees, or contractors.<sup>290</sup>

v. Records Regarding Security of a Public Entity, Public Officials and the Public

Certain records regarding security of public entities are exempt or confidential due to concerns that the release of this information would put the security of public buildings, public officials, or the public at risk.

Security system plans kept by a public entity are exempt from the open records law.<sup>291</sup> This includes a wide range of records relating directly to the physical electronic security of a public facility or critical infrastructure of a public entity, including threat response plans and emergency evacuation plans.<sup>292</sup> Not only are the plans protected, but the portions of the records, information, surveys, communications, and consultations used to produce plans relating to protecting the public or public officials are also exempt.<sup>293</sup> Security related plans used to protect electronic information or to prevent access to computer or telecommunications networks of a public entity are confidential.<sup>294</sup>

Records of fire departments and fire protection districts such as emergency response standard operating procedures, prefire action plans, and infrastructure planes are exempt.<sup>295</sup>

w. Autopsy Images

Individually identifiable information, including, but not limited to a person's name, address, telephone number, fax number, email address, that is submitted to the Department of Human Services for the purpose of applying for or receiving assistance or services administered or supervised by the department is confidential.<sup>297</sup>

Applications, income or eligibility verification, assessments, or other personal, medical, or financial data provided by persons applying for or receiving economic assistance from programs administered under the division of community services or a community action agency are exempt.<sup>298</sup>

y. Internal Investigations

If a public entity receives a complaint against it or a public employee for misconduct, and initiates an internal investigation, records relating to the investigation are exempt until the investigation is closed or seventy-five days have passed from the date of the complaint.<sup>299</sup>

z. Records Involving Negotiation, Contracts, and Settlement Agreements

Records revealing a public entity's negotiation strategy and instruction regarding pending claims, litigation, adversarial administrative proceedings, or contracts, if revealing the record would have an adverse fiscal effect on the public entity, are exempt.<sup>300</sup> Drafts of contracts or agreements subject to negotiations are exempt if release would have an adverse fiscal effect.<sup>301</sup>

Law Enforcement Records

Some of the most expansive exemptions from the open records law involve law enforcement records. Law enforcement agencies are subject to the open records law, and records of these agencies are not automatically excluded from the application of the open records law.<sup>304</sup> Instead, the general presumption that public records are open applies to law enforcement records and a specific exemption from the law is required.<sup>305</sup> There are, however, numerous statutory exemptions, some of which are discussed below, for law enforcement records that are open to the public.

1. Law Enforcement Records of a Child

A broad law enforcement exemption from the open records law is found in N.D.C.C. § 27-20-52:

1. Unless a charge of delinquency is transferred for criminal prosecution under section 27-20-34, the interest of national security requires, or the court otherwise orders in the interest of the child, the law enforcement and correctional facility records and files of a child alleged or found to be delinquent, unruly, or deprived are not open to public inspection; but inspection of these records and files is permitted by:
  - a. A juvenile court having the child before it in any proceeding;
  - b. Counsel for a party to the proceeding;
  - c. The officers of public institutions or agencies to whom the child is or may be committed;
  - d. Law enforcement officers of other jurisdictions when necessary for the discharge of their official duties;
  - e. A court in which the child is convicted of a criminal offense for the purpose of a presentence report or other dispositional proceeding, or by officials of correctional facilities to which the child is detained or committed, or by the parole board, the governor, or the pardon advisory board, if one has been appointed, in considering the child's parole or discharge or in exercising supervision over the child;

<sup>304</sup> N.D.A.G. 79-201. This opinion was limited to "law enforcement" types of records that deal specifically with the investigation and detection of crime. Other records regarding the general administration of law enforcement agencies were unaffected by the opinion and continued to be open to the public. See N.D.A.G. 81-05 (job applications).

<sup>305</sup> N.D.A.G. Letter to Rudnick (June 16, 1992); N.D.A.G. Letter to Alexander (Nov. 14, 1985); N.D.A.G. Letter to Neugebauer (Jan. 31, 1983).

- f. The professional staff of the uniform crime victims compensation program when necessary for the discharge of its duties pursuant to chapter 54-23.4; and
  - g. A superintendent or principal of the school in which the child is currently enrolled or of a school in which the child wishes to enroll.
2. Notwithstanding that law enforcement records and files of a child alleged or found to be delinquent, unruly, or deprived are not open to public inspection, this section does not limit the release of general information that does not identify the identity of the child.

This section applies only to records held by law enforcement agencies, not school records.<sup>306</sup> "The lack of an ongoing investigation is not relevant to the statutory requirement that the records not be disclosed to the public."<sup>307</sup> Rather, this exemption applies regardless of whether a record is active or inactive. As amended in 1995, this section authorizes the release of general information regarding a crime so long as the child whom the records concern is not identified. However, identifying information of a juvenile may be released for the purpose of apprehending a juvenile "who is alleged to have committed a delinquent act involving actual or threat of serious bodily injury that would constitute a felony if committed by an adult or who has escaped or left without authorization from a secure facility."<sup>308</sup> Because counsel for a party to the proceeding has access to these records, this section also does not limit the information available for discovery in that proceeding.<sup>309</sup> Sharing this information is also permitted between attorneys in the same county state's attorney's office.<sup>310</sup>

This section, as amended in 1997, is limited to files of children alleged or found to be delinquent, unruly, or deprived, and does not apply to all children or to files of other individuals that simply mention or concern a child.<sup>311</sup> A record is not confidential under this section unless it has a connection with a charge or finding that a child is unruly, deprived, or delinquent.<sup>312</sup>

Other statutes provide additional protection to child witnesses or victims of crime:

In order to protect the child from possible trauma resulting from publicity, the name of the child victim or witness of a crime, except as specified in subsection 2, and identifying biographical information may not appear on the indictment or any other public record. Instead, a Jane Doe or Joe Doe designation must appear in all public records. Sealed confidential records containing the child's name and necessary biographical information must be kept in order to ensure that no defendant is charged twice.<sup>313</sup>

N.D.C.C. § 12.1-35-03(2). As amended in 1997, this section does not apply to traffic offenses or victims of a fire, or to child victims and witnesses who have died.<sup>314</sup> Further amended in 2017, "[i]nterviews and statements of child victims or child witnesses obtained during an investigation of a crime of a violent or sexual nature are exempt."<sup>315</sup>

In any criminal proceeding in which the defendant is charged with a violation of chapter 12.1-20 involving a child, the court, upon the motion of the prosecuting attorney, shall conduct a hearing to determine whether the testimony of and relating to a child may be closed to the public in order to protect the child's reputation.<sup>316</sup> Pursuant to N.D.C.C. § 12.1-35-05.2, the court must consider several criteria before closing the proceedings.

2. Criminal Intelligence and Investigative Information

The policy discussed in the Attorney General's 1979 opinion that weighed against the public's access to public information was the need for efficient operation of law enforcement agencies in the investigation and detection of crime. This policy is now preserved by the open records exemption in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.7:

1. Active criminal intelligence information and active criminal investigative information are not subject to section 44-04-18 and section 6 of article XI of the Constitution of North Dakota. A criminal justice agency shall maintain a list of all files containing active criminal intelligence and investigative information which have been in existence for more than one year. With respect to each file, the list must contain the file's number or other identifying characteristic and the date the file was established. The list required under this subsection is subject to section 44-04-18. Personal information of any person contained in an active or nonactive file is an exempt record as defined in subsection 5 of section 44-04-17.1.
2. "Criminal intelligence and investigative information" does not include:
  - a. Arrestee description, including name, date of birth, address, race, sex, physical description, and occupation of arrestee.

- b. Facts concerning the arrest, including the cause of arrest and the name of the arresting officer.
  - c. Conviction information, including the name of any person convicted of a criminal offense.
  - d. Disposition of all warrants, including orders signed by a judge of any court commanding a law enforcement officer to arrest a particular person.
  - e. A chronological list of incidents, including initial offense report information showing the offense, date, time, general location, officer, and a brief summary of what occurred.
  - f. A crime summary, including a departmental summary of crimes reported and public calls for service by classification, nature, and number.
  - g. Radio log, including a chronological listing of the calls dispatched.
  - h. General registers, including jail booking information.
  - i. Arrestee photograph, if release will not adversely affect a criminal investigation.
3. "Criminal intelligence information" means information with respect to an identifiable person or group of persons collected by a criminal justice agency in an effort to anticipate, prevent, or monitor possible criminal activity. Criminal intelligence information must be considered "active" as long as it is related to intelligence gathering conducted with a reasonable good-faith belief it will lead to detection of ongoing or reasonably anticipated criminal activities. Criminal intelligence information also includes training materials and information obtained by a criminal justice agency regarding prospective criminal activities which impact officer safety until the information is publicly disclosed.
4. "Criminal investigative information" means information with respect to an identifiable person or group of persons compiled by a criminal justice agency in the course of conducting a criminal investigation of a specific act or omission, including information derived from laboratory tests, reports of investigators or informants, or any type of surveillance. Criminal investigative information must be considered "active" as long as it is related to an ongoing investigation that is continuing with a reasonable good-faith anticipation of securing an arrest or prosecution in the foreseeable future.

5. "Criminal justice agency" means any law enforcement agency or prosecutor. The term also includes any other unit of government charged by law with criminal law enforcement duties or having custody of criminal intelligence or investigative information for the purpose of assisting law enforcement agencies in the conduct of active criminal investigations or prosecutions.
6. "Personal information" means a person's medical records or medical information obtained from the medical records; motor vehicle operator's identification number; social security number; any credit, debit, or electronic fund transfer card number; month and date of birth, height, weight, home street address, home telephone number or personal cell phone number; and any financial account numbers.
7. A computerized index created by a criminal justice agency of names included in criminal files, whether active or inactive, is an exempt record.
8. Crime scene images of a victim of a homicide or sex crime or any image of a minor victim of any crime is an exempt record as defined in subsection 5 of section 44-04-17.1.
9. An image taken by a law enforcement officer or a firefighter with a body camera or similar device and which is taken in a private place is an exempt record.<sup>317</sup>

This section was amended in 1997 to make the records exempt rather than confidential and thereby give law enforcement agencies discretion to disclose the records.<sup>318</sup>

The information in subsection five of this statute that is not made exempt under the statute is similar to the "offense report" or "police blotter" information that the Attorney General previously concluded was not exempt from the open records law.<sup>319</sup> "Criminal investigative information" applies to information compiled by a criminal justice agency.

<sup>318</sup> See 1997 N.D. Sess. Laws ch. 381, § 10. N.D.A.G. 2014-O-16 (police department had the discretion to deny a request for the identity of a victim because, at the time of the request, the information was exempt "active criminal investigative information" while the department was actively investigating the incident and release of the name could impede cooperation of certain individuals necessary to the investigation); N.D.A.G. 2014-O-15 (law enforcement had the discretion to withhold transcripts of a 911 call required by N.D.C.C. § 57-40.6-07(4) because the transcripts also contained active criminal intelligence and investigative information).

An evidence log is one example of information compiled by a criminal justice agency and is therefore exempt.<sup>320</sup> Information obtained under a search warrant is another example of "criminal investigative information".<sup>321</sup>

Criminal intelligence or investigative information is not exempt under this statute once it becomes inactive.<sup>322</sup> Thus, this inactive information is subject to the open records law unless another exemption applies.<sup>323</sup> However, "personal information," as defined in subsection 6 of this statute, contained in the criminal intelligence or investigative files remain exempt even if the file is inactive.<sup>324</sup> The phrase "criminal investigative information" under this statute does not include the names of people involved in a traffic accident because release of the names does not indicate whether a criminal investigation is being conducted.<sup>325</sup>

3. Records of Law Enforcement and Correctional Employees

Another statute also promotes efficient law enforcement activities by protecting the safety of law enforcement personnel engaged in crime investigation and detection activities.

1. Any telephone number and the home address of a juvenile court director or probation officer, an employee of a law enforcement agency, employee of a state or local correctional facility, and an employee of the department of corrections and rehabilitation are confidential. Information contained in a personnel record of an employee of the department of corrections and rehabilitation may not be disclosed to an inmate in the legal custody of the department of corrections and rehabilitation confined in a jail, prison, or other correctional facility unless authorized by the director of the department of corrections and rehabilitation. Information contained in a personnel record of a law enforcement officer of a state or local law enforcement agency or in the personnel record of a correctional employee of a correctional facility subject to chapter 12-44.1 may not be disclosed to an inmate confined in a state correctional facility or correctional facility subject to chapter 12-44.1 unless authorized by the employing agency.
2. Records or other information that would reveal the identity, or endanger the life or physical well-being, of an undercover law enforcement officer is confidential. For purposes of this subsection, an "undercover law enforcement officer" means a full-time, salaried employee of a local or state law enforcement agency who acts surreptitiously or poses as someone other than a law enforcement officer while engaging in the investigation of a violation of law.

3. Any record containing the work schedule of employees of a law enforcement agency is exempt.<sup>326</sup>

4. Confidential Informants

The 1997 Legislative Assembly enacted a new provision affirming the authority of law enforcement officials to maintain the confidentiality of informants other than undercover law enforcement officers:

A law enforcement officer or prosecutor, within the scope of the employment of the officer or prosecutor, may provide assurances of confidentiality to a person providing information regarding violations of the law. Any information that would identify or provide a means of identifying a confidential informant, if the identity of the informant is not otherwise publicly known, is confidential and may be disclosed only as permitted by law.<sup>327</sup>

5. Information Resulting From Child Abuse or Neglect Investigations

N.D.C.C. § 50-25.1-11 provides:

A report made under this chapter, as well as any other information obtained, is confidential and must be made available to:

1. A physician who has before him a child whom he reasonably suspects may have been abused or neglected.
2. A person who is authorized to place a child in protective custody and has before him a child whom he reasonably suspects may have been abused or neglected and the person requires the information in order to determine whether to place the child in protective custody.
3. Authorized staff of the department and its authorized agents, children's advocacy centers, and appropriate state and local child protection team members, and citizen review committee members.

4. Any person who is the subject of the report; provided, however, that the identity of persons reporting or supplying information under this chapter is protected until the information is needed for use in an administrative proceeding arising out of the report.
5. Public officials and their authorized agents who require the information in connection with the discharge of their official duties.
6. A court, including an administrative hearing office, whenever the court determines that the information is necessary for the determination of an issue before the court.
7. A person engaged in a bona fide research purpose approved by the department's institutional review board; provided, however, that no individually identifiable information as defined in section 50-06-15 is made available to the researcher unless the information is absolutely essential to the research purpose and the department gives prior approval.
8. A person who is identified in subsection 1 of section 50-25.1-03, and who has made a report of suspected child abuse or neglect, if the child is likely to or continues to come before the reporter in the reporter's official or professional capacity.
9. Parents or a legally appointed guardian of a child who is suspected of being, or having been, abused or neglected, provided the identity of persons making reports or supplying information under this chapter is protected. Unless the information is confidential under section 44-04-18.7, when a decision is made under section 50-25.1-05.1 that services are required to provide for the protection and treatment of an abused or neglected child, the department shall make a good-faith effort to provide written notice of the decision to persons identified in this subsection. The department shall consider any known domestic violence when providing notification under this section.

Law enforcement officials would have access to these records under subsection five of this statute. Violating the confidentiality of these records is a class B misdemeanor.<sup>328</sup> This section does not prohibit a prosecutor from providing these reports to defense counsel as part of required discovery in criminal or juvenile court cases.<sup>329</sup>

6. Criminal History Information

N.D.C.C. ch. 12-60 and North Dakota Administrative Code art. 10-13 govern the reporting, collecting, maintaining, and disseminating of criminal history record information.

"Criminal history record information" includes information collected by criminal justice agencies on individuals consisting of identifiable descriptions and notations of arrests, detentions, indictments, information, or other criminal charges, any dispositions arising therefrom, sentencing, correctional supervision, and release.<sup>330</sup>

The Bureau of Criminal Investigation (BCI) is the state central repository for this information.<sup>331</sup> BCI and other criminal justice agencies are required to disclose criminal history record information to a criminal justice agency, a court, pursuant to a subpoena, or as otherwise required by law.<sup>332</sup> Each local police department or county state's attorney's office is a "criminal justice agency,"<sup>333</sup> but county social service boards are not.<sup>334</sup> Courts and clerks of court also are not criminal justice agencies.<sup>335</sup> Only BCI can provide a criminal history record to other parties.<sup>336</sup> BCI can disseminate criminal history record information to other parties only if certain requirements are met and upon written request.<sup>337</sup> The request must contain certain information.<sup>338</sup> Only record information of a conviction, or of a reportable event occurring in the last three years that has not been purged or sealed, may be released.<sup>339</sup>

The restrictions on disclosure of "criminal history record information" as a compilation do not apply to releases by local law enforcement agencies of records of specific offenses which are used as source documents for compiling criminal history record information.<sup>340</sup>

<sup>330</sup> N.D.C.C. § 12-60-16.1(5). Generally, records such as arrest records, investigative reports, incident reports, and records of court proceedings are not confidential. A review of those types of records is commonly referred to as conducting a "background check." There is a difference between a "background check," conducted by local law enforcement by accessing publically available documents, and a "criminal history record check," performed by BCI by accessing confidential law enforcement databases. The "criminal history background check" is confidential and may only be received and accessed under the authority of N.D.C.C. ch. 12-60. N.D.A.G. 2013-O-09.

7. Crimes against Children and Sex Offender Registration Information

Relevant and necessary conviction and registration information must be disclosed to the public by a law enforcement agency if the individual is a moderate or high risk and the agency determines that disclosure of the information is necessary for public protection. In addition, law enforcement agencies may release upon request conviction and registration information regarding low-risk, moderate-risk, or high-risk offenders.<sup>341</sup> A law enforcement agency shall register juvenile offenders in the same manner as adult offenders and may release any relevant and necessary information on file if necessary to protect public health or safety.<sup>342</sup>

8. Reports of Student Alcohol and Drug Violations

Law enforcement records regarding an incident in which a student is believed to have violated certain statutes regarding alcohol or drugs must be provided to the principal of the school where the student is enrolled unless doing so would jeopardize a prolonged criminal investigation.<sup>343</sup> The notice must be in writing and must be provided within two weeks after an incident occurs and the principal shall forward the notice to the school's chemical abuse preassessment team or support team.<sup>344</sup>

9. Notification of Serious Injury or Death

A law enforcement agency investigating a serious injury or death of any person is responsible for notifying the immediate family of the seriously injured or deceased person.<sup>345</sup> The investigating agency may not release to the public the name of the seriously injured or deceased person until a member of the immediate family has been notified and given an opportunity to notify other immediate family members, or until twenty-four hours after positive identification of the person was made, whichever occurs first.<sup>346</sup> "Immediate family" means "spouse, parent, child, sibling, or any person who regularly resides in the household of the seriously injured or deceased person."<sup>347</sup>

10. Accident Reports

Accident reports made by law enforcement officers are generally not privileged or confidential,<sup>348</sup> and therefore are subject to the open records law.<sup>349</sup> However, that portion of a law enforcement officer's accident report containing the officer's opinion regarding responsibility for the accident is confidential and may be disclosed by the investigating agency or the director of the North Dakota Department of Transportation upon payment of a $5 fee only to a party to the accident, a party's legal representative, or the insurer of any party to the accident if that opinion is material to a determination of liability for the accident.<sup>350</sup> Amended in 2013, the following information is also exempt from an accident report: driver identification number, telephone number, insurance company name and policy information, and day and month of birth of any party in the report.<sup>351</sup> "Accident reports made by persons involved in accidents or by garages" are confidential.<sup>352</sup>

11. Victim Information

Generally, non-active, closed investigation files kept by criminal justice agencies are open records.<sup>353</sup> This includes closed files that contain complaints of domestic violence, sexual offenses, sexual performance of a child, and human trafficking. If a criminal justice agency or correctional facility receives a request for a file related to allegations of domestic violence, sexual assault pursuant to chapter 12.1-20, sexual performance of a child under chapter 12.1-27.2, or human trafficking under chapter 12.1-41, it may redact any addresses, telephone numbers, or any identifying information that, if released, could reasonably be used to locate or identify a victim or alleged victim of such crimes.<sup>354</sup>

In 2016, Article I, Section 25, of the Constitution, otherwise known as "Marsy's Law," was enacted by initiated measure in the State of North Dakota. The law enumerates 19 rights afforded to victims including a victim's "right to prevent the disclosure of information or records that could be used to locate or harass the victim or victim's family, or which could disclose confidential or privileged information about the victim, and to be notified of any request for such information or records."<sup>355</sup> A "victim" is defined in Marsy's Law as "a person who suffers direct or threatened physical, psychological, or financial harm as a result of the commission or attempted commission of a crime or delinquent act or against whom the crime or delinquent act is committed.<sup>356</sup> A victim must specifically invoke his or her rights under Marsy's Law for the protections to apply.<sup>357</sup>

N.D.C.C. § 12.1-34-02 also protects the address, telephone number, place of employment, or other information, that could be used to locate a victim or witness to a crime. However, if a victim invokes his or her Marsy's Law rights, this protection would extend to protecting the location information of a victim's family. Criminal justice agencies will need to review a record and reasonably interpret what information could be used to locate a victim or victim's family, which would include addresses or reference to a specific building or place of employment, which could lead to the location.<sup>358</sup>

Information that could be used to "harass" a victim or victim's family is also protected under affirmatively invoked Marsy's Law rights which is interpreted as contact information including telephone numbers and email addresses.

Marsy's Law only applies to records of criminal justice agencies and does not protect the name of a victim.<sup>359</sup> More information regarding Marsy's Law can be found on the Attorney General's website.

If a victim is deceased, incompetent, incapacitated, or a minor, the victim's spouse, parent, grandparent, child, sibling, grandchild, or guardian, and any person with a relationship to the victim that is substantially similar to a listed relationship, may also exercise these rights. # North Dakota Court Decisions Regarding Open Records

1. North Dakota Supreme Court Cases

Grand Forks Herald v. Lyons, 101 N.W.2d 543 (N.D. 1960).

The open records law does not apply to county court records. County courts are not “agencies of the state” as that phrase is used in the open records law. The purpose of the open records law is to make information available to the public relative to the spending of public monies and the handling of public business. What the Legislature was attempting to accomplish was to provide the public with the right and the means of informing itself of the conduct of the business in which the public has an interest, in order that the citizen and taxpayer might examine public records to determine whether public money is being properly spent, or for the purpose of bringing to the attention of the public irregularities in the handling of public matters. Applications for marriage licenses and issuance of such licenses are not records of the county court. Such records are subject to the open records law and are open to inspection provided such applications and licenses contain no information specifically made confidential by law.

State ex rel. Williston Herald, Inc. v. O’Connell, 151 N.W.2d 758 (N.D. 1967).

Judicial records, generally, are accessible to the public for any proper purpose. The public has a right to inspect records of judicial proceedings after such proceedings are completed and entered in the docket of the court. This right of inspection, however, is not unlimited. The court, in its discretion, may impound its files in a given case when justice so requires, and in that event may deny inspection thereof. Any right of inspection of the criminal records of a county court of increased jurisdiction is subject to reasonable rules and regulations regarding who may inspect the records and where and how such inspection may be made.

City of Grand Forks v. Grand Forks Herald, Inc., 307 N.W.2d 572 (N.D. 1981).

Municipal personnel files are public records subject to disclosure under the open records law. The term “records” as used in the open records law is unambiguous. The Legislature intended to give the term “records” an expansive meaning. Municipal personnel files are open for inspection equally to members of the public, which includes the news media. Public records are not limited to those records which are required by law to be kept and maintained. The use of the term “record” implies that a document of some official import be retained by the public officer or employee in the course of his public duties. Disclosure of the contents of a former city police chief’s personnel file did not constitute an impermissible invasion of the former city police chief’s privacy.

Forum Publishing Company v. City of Fargo, 391 N.W.2d 169 (N.D. 1986).

Job applications in the possession of a private consulting firm hired by the city to screen applicants for the position of chief of police are public records subject to the open records law. If the city had undertaken the task of screening applicants without hiring a private consulting firm, the job applications would clearly have been subject to the open records law. The purpose of the open records law would be thwarted if the court were to hold that documents so closely connected with public business but in the possession of an agent or independent contractor of the public entity were not public records.

Hovet v. Hebron Public School District, 419 N.W.2d 189 (N.D. 1988).

An implied exception to the open records law does not exist for a teacher's personnel file. The open records law provides that governmental records are to be open to the public except as otherwise specifically provided by law, and the Legislature has not specifically provided an exception for teacher personnel files. Allowing the public to view a teacher's personnel file would not violate the teacher's right to privacy. The federal right to privacy has not been recognized as applying to personnel records, and even if a right to privacy existed under the North Dakota Constitution, there would be no right to privacy in the personnel record of a person employed by a public agency.

Northern States Power Company v. North Dakota Public Service Commission, 502 N.W.2d 240 (N.D. 1993).

Price and volume data contained in a natural gas provider's filings with the Public Service Commission was not exempt from the open records law, although the data was a trade secret for purposes of N.D.C.C. ch. 47-25.1, the Uniform Trade Secrets Act. There is no specific, legislated exception to the open records law for public utility contracts that are required by law to be publicly filed with a regulatory agency, and such tariff filings are not exempt from disclosure as proceedings under N.D.C.C. ch. 28-32, the Administrative Agencies Practice Act. (But see amended N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.4.)

Gosbee v. Bendish, 512 N.W.2d 450 (N.D. 1994).

An attorney's actions seeking access to a draft lease which was in the possession of county officials was moot. The attorney had been provided with a copy of the lease pursuant to the attorney's motion in the trial court.

North Dakota Commission on Medical Competency v. Racek, 527 N.W.2d 262 (N.D. 1995).

The North Dakota Commission on Medical Competency is an arm of the Board of Medical Examiners. Although all records of the North Dakota Commission on Medical Competency are confidential and exempt from the open records law under N.D.C.C. § 43-17.1-08, the records of the Board of Medical Examiners are not exempt and are open to the public under the open records law. (But see N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18.1(4).)

Adams County Record v. Greater North Dakota Association, 529 N.W.2d 830 (N.D. 1995).

There was no majority opinion in this case. The case addresses the application of the open records law to a private, nonprofit corporation which was alleged to have been supported by public funds. The open records law, which provides for inspection of records of organizations or agencies supported in whole or in part by public funds, or expending public funds, requires that public funds be used as “support” for the organization before inspection is required, but not every transfer of public funds to a private entity is support. “Support” means something other than a quid pro quo, or bargained-for exchange of money for identifiable and specific goods and services. Where membership dues result in a quid pro quo, in sufficiently identifiable quantities, there is not “support” under the open records law which would allow public inspection of records of a nongovernmental organization, but those dues which are for the general support of the organization constitute “support” for purposes of the open records law. “Records” subject to inspection under the open records law should be given an expansive meaning and the term is not limited to those records which are required by law to be kept and maintained; once it has been determined that an entity falls under a category of organization subject to the law, then by the plain language of the open records law, all records of the entity are open to inspection. Exceptions to the open records law must be specific and may not be implied. The policy underlying the open records law is to allow taxpayers to see how state funds are used.

Borr v. McKenzie County Public School District No. 1, 560 N.W.2d 213 (N.D. 1997).

A teacher’s right to an open and accurate personnel file was not abridged by a principal’s notations in a desk journal or daily planner concerning complaints that were immediately brought to the attention of the teacher, even though the notations were not immediately transferred verbatim to the teacher’s personnel file. Notations in a principal’s private diary regarding a teacher’s performance which were never discussed with the teacher would violate the statutes prohibiting a secret personnel file, if that record was later used at a nonrenewal hearing.

Toth v. Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of North Dakota, 562 N.W.2d 744 (N.D. 1997).

A settlement agreement between the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners, which is a state agency, and a chiropractor was an open record. A state agency cannot circumvent the open records law through a confidentiality clause in a settlement agreement.

Adams County Record v. Greater North Dakota Association, 564 N.W.2d 304 (N.D. 1997).

The trial court properly concluded as a question of fact that a quid pro quo existed under a binding unilateral contract where GNDA published Horizons magazine and the state in return paid $30,000 annually to GNDA. A bargained-for exchange occurred when GNDA accepted the state's unilateral offer by publishing the magazine.

Robot Aided Manufacturing, Inc. v. North Dakota Department of Transportation, 589 N.W.2d 187 (N.D. 1999).

A law authorizing a specific fee for a compilation of information does not apply to the source documents used to create the compilation. Instead, the source documents are subject to the "reasonable fee" requirement in N.D.C.C. § 44-04-18. A public entity is not required to comply with a continuing request for records and can require separate, periodic requests.

2. North Dakota District Court Cases

Radig v. Conrad, No. 24668 (N.D. 4th Dist., Oct. 26, 1977) (Burleigh Co.).

Records indicating a state employee's deductions for deferred compensation are not public records subject to the open records law. This information relates to private financial transactions in which the public has no legitimate interest; it does not relate to whether public funds are being properly expended. Making these records public would invade the right to privacy of the state employee.
